Study Title: Envisioning Education to Science Pathways: Knowledge Production & Cultural Politics in STEM Pedagogy

You have been asked to participate in a study that will document and analyze how people involved with STEM education and teaching are responding to contemporary and historical concerns about the relationship between science, culture, and society. If you have questions about the study or this form, please contact either the lead researcher or faculty sponsor listed above.

The study includes the collection of documents, photos and video relevant to issues of STEM and education in the United States. When permission is granted by the person who produced or owns this documentation, it will be digitally archived and made publicly accessible in an archive on the PECE platform: (<https://stsinfrastructures.org/>)

On this form, please list the documentation that you have provided the research team for inclusion in the project archive.

Please do not provide documentation that you did not produce or own (unless the documentation is already public -- a government report, for example).

The Archive is visible to the public. Please don't provide documents that you do not want to be public.

At your request, the documentation provided can be removed from the Archive by contacting the Lead Researcher or Faculty Sponsor listed above.

The project archive is designed for educational, non-commercial use. All documentation included in the archive will be given creative commons licenses (held by you, the documentation provider), allowing for free, non-commercial re-use (Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0 International License). Unless you indicate otherwise, you will be listed as the author and source of the documentation.

Description of documentation provided.	Preferred title	Author	Source

I consent to the digital archiving of this documentation and am aware that it will be publicly accessible.
