

In upcoming 50 years I wish to research topics on:

Mostly exploration of more-than-human entanglements around the Three poles of the world, where the (infra-)structure is minimal, yet still present

Sociology of ropes (Search and Rescue context)

More-than-human resilience in the Arctic

More-than-human entanglements in Search with Dogs

Navigation practices in Lukla and Nunavut (Search and Rescue)

Local knowledge and local safety practices of fishers in Curonian Spit (Lithuania)

New Materialisms and Archaeology, Multiplicity of a mound

Water practices and knowledges

Tidal zones and the liminal worlds

Arctic Security

Temporalities and multiplicity of infrastructure

More-than-human in Antarctica

Permafrost

Research stations in Polar areas

Worldings of hitchhiking

And I would like to do so in following places:

Norway, Iceland, Canada, Russia, and other Arctic States

Antarctica, New Zealand, Argentina, and Chile (Southernmost regions)

Himalaya region

Baltic States
